THE ART INSTITUTE OF CHICAGO was incorporated May 24, 1879, for the "founding and maintenance of schools of art and design, the formation and exhibition of collections of objects of art, and the cultivation and extension of the arts of design by any appropriate means." The museum building upon the lake front, first occupied in 1893, is open to the public every week day from 9 to 5:30, Sundays from 12:15 to 9 p. m. Admission is free to members and their families at all times, and free to all upon Wednesdays, Saturdays, Sundays, and public holidays.

The Art School, in the same building, includes departments of Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Decorative Designing and its allied branches, Normal Instruction, and Architecture.

All friends of the Art Institute are invited to become members. Annual Members pay a fee of ten dollars a year. Sustaining members pay twenty-five dollars a year or more. Life Members pay one hundred dollars and are thenceforth exempt from dues. Governing Members pay one hundred dollars upon election and twenty-five dollars a year thereafter. Upon the payment of four hundred dollars additional, Governing Members become Governing Life Members and are thenceforth exempt from dues. All receipts from life memberships are invested and the income only expended.

All members are entitled, with their families and visiting friends, to admission to all exhibitions, receptions, public lectures, and entertainments given by the Art Institute (excepting the Sunday concerts), and to the use of the Ryerson Library.

Visitors desiring to see the collections of the museum under guidance may make appointments with the museum instructors in Gallery 16.

FOREWORD

In a nation in which art and industry have developed to the point reached by these in the United States, an art school, under whatsoever control it may be, is a national institution and in proportion to its accomplishment, a national asset. There have been conclusive demonstrations of this as a principle in the commerce of the nineteenth century—in the notable effects which art education has had upon export trade, first in France and subsequently in England and in Germany, as each of these countries in turn began to give definite attention to the training of designers.

The purpose of the present exhibition is two-fold. In the first place, it is designed to afford to all who are or have been identified with the Art Institute in any capacity, a survey of the tangible achievement of the school since its establishment thirty-nine years ago. Secondly, it is hoped by means of it to show to the cultural and industrial interests of this community that it is in the realm of art, both free and applied, that we find the most perfect unification of these cultural and industrial interests with life itself.

The Art Institute rejoices in the opportunity which this first exhibition and homecoming affords for welcoming its former students and instructors; it takes this occasion to express its gratitude for the co-operation which has been given by former students, instructors and friends in making this exhibition as truly representative as it is.

The William Merchant Richardson French Gold Medal will be awarded to a meritorious work by a former student of the School of the Art Institute. This award will be made by a vote in which all former students visiting the exhibition are entitled to participate.
